ASCENT 2018:Unlocking Your Potential

The one-day soft skills workshop, "ASCENT 2018:Unlocking Your Potential," held on November 6, 2018, was designed to equip undergraduate students with the essential soft skills needed to excel academically and professionally. The workshop, conducted at Auditorium spanned from 9:15 AM to 3:30 PM and featured a series of sessions focusing on communication skills, time management, critical thinking, and interpersonal skills.

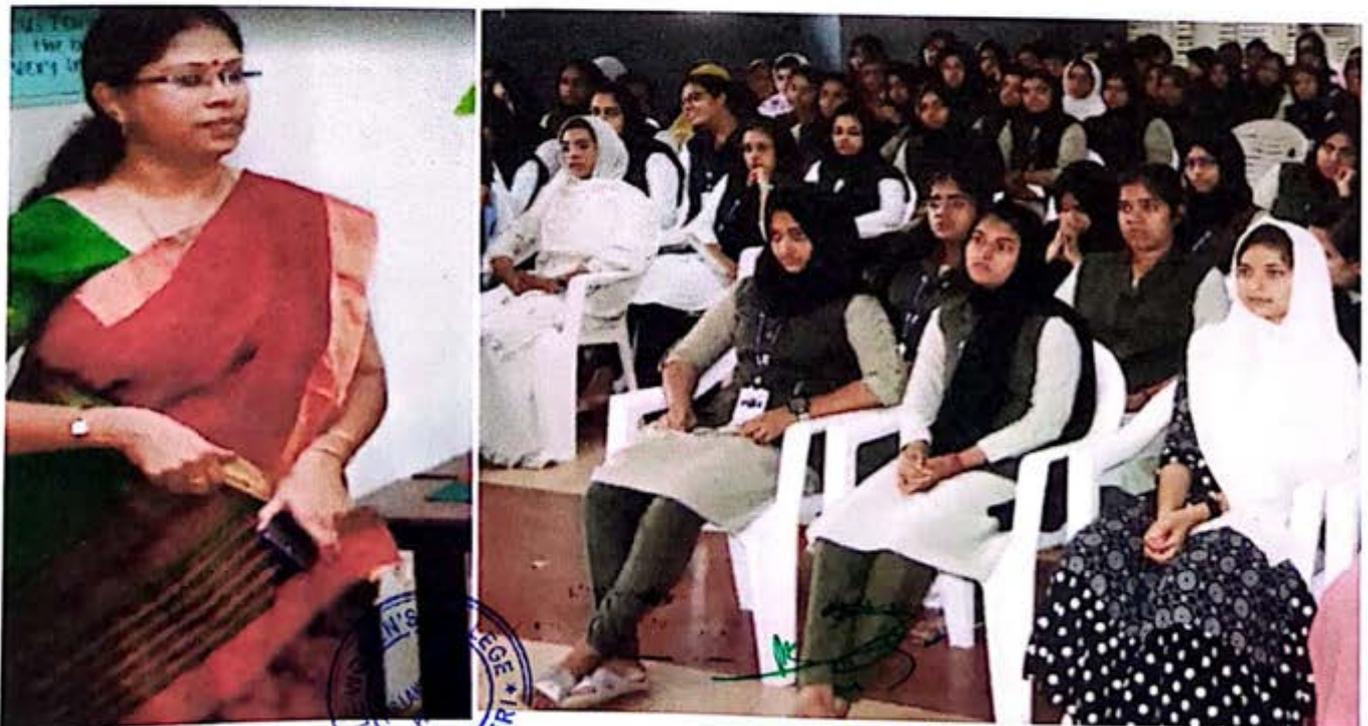

In the opening session, facilitators provided valuable insights into effective verbal and non-verbal communication. Mrs. Saritha. K, a professional soft skill trainer in JCI and Assistant Professor in the Department of English at Noble Women's College, engaged the students with her expertise in this crucial area. She shared practical tips on clear and persuasive communication and encouraged active listening, which was reinforced through interactive activities.

The next session focused on time management and organization. Students learned about the importance of setting priorities, goal setting, and techniques to manage time effectively while overcoming procrastination. They also acquired skills to organize their tasks and create efficient plans to enhance productivity.

In the afternoon, the workshop delved into critical thinking and problem-solving, with Mrs. Saritha .K introducing key principles and techniques. Through case studies and group exercises, students had the chance to apply their newfound knowledge to real-world scenarios, fostering analytical and creative thinking. The program wrapped up with a recap of the day's lessons, leaving students with a clear understanding of the skills they had acquired. Mrs. Saritha. K , along with other faculties of the Department of English, encouraged students to reflect on their experiences and consider how to implement these skills in their academic and personal lives.

The "ASCENT 2018: Unlocking Your Potential" soft skills workshop was a highly successful initiative, effectively equipping undergraduate students with the essential skills they need to excel academically and professionally. The department is committed to building on this foundation and continuing to support our students in their personal and professional development.

Crafting Poetry

January 17, 2019

The one-day soft skills workshop, "Crafting Poetry," took place on January 17, 2019, with the objective of empowering postgraduate students with essential skills for excelling in the art of poetry. The workshop featured informative sessions throughout the day, including an exploration of poetic forms, creative writing exercises, and advanced techniques. Renowned poets' work served as a wellspring of inspiration, while peer feedback and discussions during the lunch break facilitated valuable networking opportunities.

A notable mention goes to our resource person, Shameema K, who enthusiastically engaged the students in her session, leaving an indelible impact on their poetic journey.

Participants expressed gratitude for the program, highlighting its role in nurturing their poetic talents and understanding the intricacies of poetry. Many students pledged to apply the knowledge gained in their personal creative endeavors and seek opportunities to share their work.

In the future, we plan to refine the program based on detailed feedback, host poetry competitions and events, and encourage ongoing skill development through mentorship opportunities. The "Crafting Poetry" workshop has been a resounding success, equipping students with the tools to explore and express their creativity in the world of poetry.

MASTERLIT: Mastering Analytical Literary Critique.

November 12, 2019

On November 12, 2019, postgraduate English literature students gathered at the seminar hall to participate in the one-day soft skills workshop, "MASTERLIT: Mastering Analytical Literary Critique." The primary objective of this workshop was to equip students with advanced analytical skills vital for in-depth literary critique and academic excellence.

The day began with the "Analytical Approaches to Literature" session, where the facilitator introduced various literary theories and engaged participants in practical exercises. This fostered lively group discussions and the immediate application of theories to literary texts.

In the session, Renjitha KR, our esteemed resource person and Assistant Professor of the Department of English, delved into the techniques of "Close Reading and Textual Analysis." Students honed their skills by analyzing literary elements in sample texts, gaining invaluable insights into the nuances of literary interpretation.

The afternoon session continued with "Thematic Analysis and Comparative Studies." Here, thematic analysis and intertextuality were explored, enabling students to analyze multiple texts in the context of themes and motifs. The program concluded with a recap of the day's lessons and practical applications. Students were encouraged to continue applying their newly acquired analytical skills to engage in advanced literary analysis. Certificates of participation were awarded to acknowledge their dedication to advancing their analytical abilities.

Participants expressed their gratitude for the program and its value in advancing their analytical skills. They showed enthusiasm for applying these skills in their academic research and literary studies.

In summary, the "Mastering Analytical Literary Critique" workshop was a successful initiative that empowered postgraduate English literature students with advanced analytical skills. They remain committed to supporting their academic and professional growth in the field of English literature.

Report

LITECH: Literature Meets Technology

Date: 19.11.2020

The "LITECH: Literature Meets Technology: Navigating the Digital Realm in Education" program, held on November 19, 2020, was a dynamic online initiative aimed at equipping literature students with essential digital literacy and technology skills to thrive in the evolving landscape of education and literary exploration.

The day commenced with a warm welcome and an overview, emphasizing the significance of technology in modern education and literature by Ms.Saritha.K . The session was handled by Ms. Sidia Mathew Assistant Professor, Noble Women's College, Manjeri, who introduced the concept of digital resources and libraries, delving into research techniques using online databases, and providing guidance on accessing e-books and audiobooks for literary studies.

The program continued with a brief session on "Engaging with Online Literary Communities." The session explored the use of social media platforms to foster literary discussions and engagement. In the "Creative Expression through Technology" segment, the focus shifted to creative content creation, including blogs, podcasts, and videos. Interactive storytelling platforms were explored, and students were encouraged to adapt classic literature to digital formats, considering copyright and ethical considerations.

The program concluded with "Closing Remarks and Next Steps," summarizing the key takeaways and practical applications. Participants were encouraged to continue embracing technology in their literary pursuits, explore digital literary initiatives, and stay updated with emerging tools and resources. Under the guidance of Sidia Mathew, students were provided with presentation slides, handouts, and access to online libraries and literary resources to enhance their digital skills.

The "Literature Meets Technology" program was a resounding success, offering a quick but comprehensive introduction to integrating technology into literature studies, especially to meet the current paradigm shift from traditional classroom learning to online learning platforms, a shift initiated by pandemic lockdowns. . Participants left with a deeper understanding of how technology can enhance their literary exploration in today's increasingly digital education landscape. They are now well-equipped to continue their digital literary journey and actively participate in the modern world of literary studies.

A SOFT SKILL PROGRAMME ON TEAMWORK

Date: 01-09-2020

PG Department of Computer Science of Noble Women's College, Manjeri successfully conducted a webinar on the soft skill Teamwork for all UG students of the department on September 1st 2020. The Resource Person of the session was Ms. Anusree Nambrath (Assistant Professor, Priyadarshini Arts and Science College, Malappuram). There were a total of 45 students in the webinar along with department faculty members. The welcome address was given by Mr. Mr. Ishaque K (Assistant Professor, Noble Women's College, Manjeri). The programme was chaired by Ms. Jisna NT (HOD, Noble Women's College, Manjeri)

The resource person started with the definition of Teamwork stating that, Teamwork is a crucial soft skill that can help students not only during their academic careers but also in their future professional lives. Here are some additional tips and suggestions given by the resource person for fostering effective teamwork among students:

Foster a positive team culture: A positive team culture is essential for effective teamwork. Encourage students to support and respect each other, and promote a culture of open communication and collaboration.

Set clear goals and expectations: Clearly defining the team's goals and expectations can help ensure that everyone is working towards the same objectives. This can also help students prioritize their tasks and stay on track.

Assign roles and responsibilities: Assigning specific roles and responsibilities to each team member can help ensure that everyone is contributing to the team's success. This can also help students develop leadership skills and accountability.

Encourage active listening: Encouraging students to actively listen to each other can help promote better communication and understanding. This can also help students develop empathy and interpersonal skills.
